
ERAFP'S SHAREHOLDER ENGAGEMENT

2022 GUIDE- LINES

Under its SRI Charter,

INTRODUCTION

“ERAFP is determined to support, on a long-term basis, those organisations in which it has decided to invest, by exercising its responsibilities as shareholder or stakeholder in such a way as to sustainably promote, within these entities, practices that respect the values it supports.”

In other words, ERAFP intends to be an active shareholder and, to that end, engage with those issuers in which it has either made or is considering an investment.

This engagement includes all forms of dialogue between an institutional investor and a company/an issuer:

- _ Public or targeted communications (e.g. via “customised” mailings),
- _ Meetings with management,
- _ Collaborative engagement initiatives,
- _ Voting at shareholders’ meetings,
- _ etc.

Depending on the investment method (direct or delegated to asset managers), the engagement may be performed directly by the investor or delegated to a service provider.

The approach may be conducted individually or collectively, for example through alliances or shareholder and institutional investor coalitions.

The engagement process and its various components (e.g. exercise of voting rights) is more effective when circumscribed by guidelines. In the specific case of voting, the guidelines specify the investor’s position on issues that may be addressed in shareholders’ meeting resolutions (equity transactions, composition of the Board of Directors, executive remuneration, social and environmental issues, etc.).

ERAFP’s SRI guidelines on companies address — under the value of Good Governance and Transparency — certain subjects that come up for a vote at shareholders’ meetings, but these guidelines are not sufficiently detailed to cover in a comprehensive manner all resolutions presented to the shareholders’ meeting for approval.

ERAFP has therefore decided to adopt guidelines for engagement, including the exercise of voting rights.

These guidelines serve as a reference for ERAFP’s proxies to fulfil their respective mandates. They therefore cover the following categories of activities:

- _ Shareholder engagement;
- _ Exercise of voting rights.

The section of these guidelines relating to the exercise of voting rights is reviewed annually.

PRINCIPLES FOR RESPONSIBLE INVESTMENT

As a long-term investor, ERAFP has a duty to act in the long-term interests of its beneficiaries. In this fiduciary role, ERAFP believes that environmental, social and governance (ESG) issues can influence investment portfolio performance.

Since it was founded, ERAFP is convinced that taking ESG issues into account will make the Scheme more likely to satisfy its commitments to beneficiaries and align its investment activities with the general interests of society as a whole.

In 2006, ERAFP became a signatory to the Principles for Responsible Investment (PRI) of the United Nations (www.unpri.org).

ERAFP's SRI policy therefore needs to be consistent with the PRI.

Consequently, because it is compatible with our fiduciary responsibility, i.e. our responsibility to the Scheme's beneficiaries, we have made the following commitments:

- _ We incorporate ESG considerations into our investment analysis and decision-making processes.
- _ We are active owners and incorporate ESG issues into an ownership policies and practices.
- _ We ask appropriate disclosure on ESG issues by the entities in which we invest.
- _ We promote the acceptance and implementation of the Principles within the investment industry.
- _ We work with the other PRI signatories in order to enhance our effectiveness in implementing the Principles.
- _ We report individually on our activities and progress towards implementing the Principles.

RELATIONS WITH MANAGEMENT COMPANIES

ERAFP's equity investments are made through French-registered investment funds (FCPs) whose management is delegated to investment companies. As a result, ERAFP:

- _ does not directly own the shares in the portfolio but instead owns shares in the FCPs;
- _ does not therefore directly exercise the voting rights associated with the shares making up the portfolios.

However, ERAFP's investment mandates specify that "the mandate-holder agrees to exercise the voting rights attached to the FCP's financial instruments in the exclusive interests of ERAFP, in accordance with its orientations, and, in particular, in compliance with the SRI Charter".

Once ERAFP adopts guidelines for shareholder engagement and the exercise of voting rights, these guidelines are to be followed by the investment mandate-holders in the review of the resolutions submitted to shareholders' meetings and in the exercise of corresponding voting rights.

ERAFP asks that the reporting performed by the investment companies under their mandate contain a description of the manner in which they take into account its guidelines as regards shareholder engagement and the exercise of voting rights.

ERAFP's policy is to remain a non-controlling shareholder, whose relative share ownership varies in accordance with the management decisions taken by its fund managers. Consequently, it does not need to be represented in the companies' governance bodies.

Following the revision of the ERAFP's SRI Charter in 2016, undertaken by the Board of Directors to accompany the diversification of the Scheme's investments and adapt to extra-financial developments, the SRI approach was enhanced by a mechanism for more in-depth monitoring of controversial issues.

In this context, the management companies are required to monitor the controversial issues to which the issuers may be exposed. As part of ERAFP's shareholder engagement, discussions are entered into with the companies involved in proven breaches of international standards, particularly with regard to the following fundamental principles:

- _ Universal Declaration of Human Rights,
- _ ILO Declaration on Fundamental Principles and Rights at Work,
- _ Rio Declaration on Environment and Development,
- _ United Nations Conventions (particularly that against corruption).

These discussions are conducted by the ERAFP mandate-holder concerned by the investment.

GENERAL PRINCIPLES

TRANSPARENCY AS REGARDS ESG PERFORMANCE

It is in the interests of shareholders and investors to have access to sufficient information on companies' environmental, social and governance policies and practices in order to assess and compare their risks and performance in these areas.

One obstacle to the incorporation of ESG performance criteria into investment decision-making is the lack of useful and comparable information.

ERAFP prefers the most widely used reporting standards whose governance is transparent and includes the stakeholders, such as the Global Reporting Initiative (GRI), Carbon Disclosure Project (CDP), and the Extractive Industries Transparency Initiative (EITI).

ERAFP has expressed its interest in the Global Initiative Sustainability Ratings¹ (GISR), launched in June 2011 and aimed at improving the quality and reliability of company ESG performance assessment systems.

ERAFP confirms its interest in reports, preferably those drafted by independent third parties, that assess the non-financial risks associated with a project, site, practice or type of product and that make recommendations on ways to improve the management of these risks. Moreover, ERAFP encourages the companies to disclose their discretionary financial contributions or other forms of contributions to lobbying groups or political and non-governmental organisations.

Considering that the consequences of climate change are probably one of the risk factors most likely to have a long-term impact on the valuation of its assets, ERAFP supports the recommendations of the Task Force on Climate-related Financial Disclosures (TCFD) aimed at measuring climate change-related risks and opportunities for investors and companies. ERAFP also adheres to the requirements of article 173 of the French Energy Transition for Green Growth Act.

SOCIAL AND SOCIETAL RESPONSIBILITY AND COMPLIANCE WITH NATIONAL AND INTERNATIONAL LAW

ERAFP reiterates its wish that the companies in which it invests adopt policies and management systems in order to exercise their activities in accordance with the laws and regulations of their host countries and international law as established by treaties, declarations, conventions and other laws widely adopted by the international community or that are multilateral, in particular:

- _ Universal Declaration of Human Rights;
- _ United Nations Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights;
- _ Conventions adopted by the International Labour Organisation (ILO), specifically:
 - _ Convention 87 on the freedom of association;
 - _ Convention 98 on the right to organise and collective bargaining;
 - _ Conventions 29 and 105 on forced labour;
 - _ Convention 111 on employment discrimination;
 - _ Convention 100 on equal remuneration;
 - _ Conventions 138 and 182 on child labour;
 - _ Convention 155 on occupational safety and health;
 - _ International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights;
- _ United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples;
- _ Rio Declaration on the Environment and Development;
- _ United Nations Convention Against Corruption;
- _ OECD Convention on Combating Bribery of Foreign Public Officials in International Business Transactions;
- _ OECD Guidelines for Multinational Enterprises;
- _ OECD Principles of Corporate Governance.

Policies and management systems in accordance with national and international law

These agreements provide universal references through which company behaviours can be objectively assessed and ensure the greatest comprehensiveness of topics discussed.

ERAFP welcomes the adoption of the United Nations Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights². It also welcomes the OECD alignment of its Guidelines for Multinational Enterprises³ with this UN text and its conceptual “protect, respect and remedy” framework, and the adoption, to a lesser extent, by the International Finance Corporation⁴ of these same principles. Although these guiding principles are not legally binding, they nevertheless constitute a major step forward in terms of evaluating the impact of business activities on human rights. As such, ERAFP favours the implementation in OECD member states of National Contact Points with extensive powers.

ERAFP underscores that respect for international law, notably the ILO principles, can have a positive impact as regards the working conditions of local employees. This improvement can then affect disposable income and consumption of health-care and educational services and goods. Companies thereby indirectly contribute to improvements in the skills of workers even as they open up new markets. Since economic development is closely correlated to the existence of political democracy, this development enables companies to pursue their activities in a more stable and secure context.

ERAFP reiterates its emphasis on a dialogue with internal and external stakeholders, which represents a source of sustainable company performance: in order to manage their ESG risks effectively, companies have an interest in discussing and reaching agreement with the stakeholders of their projects (employees, shareholders, lenders, suppliers, clients, local communities, NGOs).

As a public service additional pension scheme naturally attached to public service and its related values, ERAFP is concerned about the growth on one hand of tax evasion and on the other of legally abusive structures designed essentially to avoid tax (aggressive tax optimisation). ERAFP is sensitive to the role played in the marked rise in this practice by territories considered to be legal and tax havens. ERAFP therefore advocates the application in corporate financial reporting of financial transparency requirements, and in particular individual financial reporting for each country in which a company is present. It is with this in mind that ERAFP will support any shareholder or issuer-led initiatives that promote financial transparency and the payment by companies of taxes due in the countries where they operate and produce or market their products and services.

An investor attached to public service and its related values

Lastly, ERAFP welcomes the adoption by the 193 UN member states of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, in September 2015. This programme is based on 17 sustainable development goals (SDGs)⁵ that, together with the Paris Agreement⁶ on climate change, aim to eradicate all forms of poverty, fight inequality and combat global warming, while ensuring that no stakeholder is excluded. While the SDGs are not legally binding, they are nevertheless a significant step forward as regards measuring the impact of corporate activities in these areas. ERAFP therefore encourages companies to commit to the SDGs and to uphold the Paris Agreement.

LONG-TERM SHARE OWNERSHIP

ERAFF is, by its nature, a long-term investor inclined to hold securities in its portfolio over a number of years. In a decision taken at its meeting of 10 November 2005, ERAFF's board of directors resolved to "adopt an investment policy that takes into account the public interest, in a proactive and ongoing manner. Indeed, the board of directors believes that investments made with a sole view to maximise financial profit ignore social, economic and environmental impacts. By contrast, by investing in accordance with pre-established values, as reiterated in these guidelines, the board seeks to both increase the value of the businesses, companies, public authorities and governments that comply with this set of values and contribute to their wider application."⁷

An investment policy that takes into account the public interest

With this in mind and in respect of its equity investments, ERAFF is committed to promoting the strategies of companies that require the short, medium and long-term economic, social and environmental impact of decisions to be taken into account in an integrated manner. Accordingly, the assessment of a company's performance cannot be based solely on the analysis of financial factors, but must also include that of criteria giving a broader appreciation of the consistency of its business plan with sustainable and responsible development goals. For example, ERAFF seeks to promote:

- _ profit distribution policies that prioritise maintaining the necessary balance between investment capacity, debt, employee remuneration and shareholder remuneration. As such, ERAFF supports the concept of the "responsible dividend";
- _ executive pay systems that incentivise managers to seek to improve the company's social and environmental practices.

For ERAFF, the issue of securing shareholder loyalty is crucial. It is therefore sensitive to the various proposals that encourage and reward long-term shareholder engagement.

An assessment based on ESG criteria

The two mechanisms most frequently used by companies to attract and keep shareholders are the introduction of double voting rights and the use of the loyalty dividend, for which investors are eligible if they hold shares on a registered basis for two or more years.

ERAFF believes that shareholders' voting rights should be proportional to their respective holdings, as the allocation of double voting rights can lead to significant distortions between the share of a company's capital that a shareholder owns and his actual level of control.

Using a loyalty dividend does not carry the same risk and can therefore be considered an appropriate way of rewarding shareholders who have held their shares for a number of years, especially as in some countries - France, for example - there is little interest for an influential shareholder to abuse this practice because the law⁸ limits:

- _ the dividend gross-up to 10%;
- _ the shareholder's maximum holdings eligible for the loyalty dividend to 0,5% of the company's equity.

However, neither of these two mechanisms constitutes a genuinely effective incentive to long-term share ownership, at least for an institutional investor like ERAFF. This is because only investors with registered shares are likely to benefit from this type of system, whereas most institutional investors hold shares in bearer form to avoid the associated bureaucracy and the cost involved in transferring shares into a registered account.

SHAREHOLDER ENGAGEMENT PRIORITIES FOR 2022

In 2022, ERAFP will focus in particular on collaborative initiatives and investor coalitions covering the following main themes:

- _ promoting strategies that comply with the objectives of the Paris Agreement, including clearly defined objectives and action plans to achieve carbon neutrality by 2050;
- _ promoting a clearly defined governance framework that includes the management of climate change-related risks and opportunities at the highest level of responsibility of a company's management bodies;
- _ contributing positively to the SDGs by encouraging the assessment of activities' impact on the SDGs and by disseminating best practices;
- _ combatting aggressive tax optimisation, in particular by promoting greater transparency in financial reporting by multinational groups;

ERAFP's position on matters likely to be subject to discussion at shareholder meetings is detailed in the following section on voting policy. In 2022, in the context of implementing this policy, ERAFP will pay particular attention to the following themes:

- _ transparency of the company's business and its financial position;
- _ the implementation of responsible dividend distribution policies;
- _ the proportion of women on boards;
- _ the promotion of the principles of transparency, equity and moderation in determining executive remuneration;
- _ the consideration of CSR issues, particularly climate change, in corporate governance.

VOTING POLICY FOR SHAREHOLDER MEETINGS IN 2022

The guidelines listed below describe ERAFP's policy for exercising voting rights during the 2022 shareholders' meeting season. This policy consists of two parts:

- _ the first describes the voting principles for each major topic of resolutions submitted for a shareholder vote;
- _ the second constitutes a working tool for internal use and for use by investment companies to which ERAFP has delegated the management of equities; this tool indicates the specific criteria obtained from the previously defined principles that would lead to a recommendation to vote against a resolution.

SUMMARY

ERAFP manages the assets of a large number of beneficiaries. In order to best defend the long-term interests of the people that it represents, ERAFP directly or indirectly exercises all of its shareholder rights, starting with voting rights.

ERAFP believes that adherence to corporate governance best practices is indispensable to the creation of sustainable value for all stakeholders. The voting policy presented herein therefore aims to improve corporate governance practices and protect to the greatest extent possible the assets of the Scheme's ultimate beneficiaries, as part of an overall responsibility.

This policy for exercising voting rights is consistent with the Socially Responsible Investment Charter defined by ERAFP and its commitment to "support, on a long-term basis, those bodies in which it has decided to invest, by exercising its responsibilities as shareholder or stakeholder in such a way as to sustainably promote, within these entities, practices that uphold the values it supports."

Indeed, voting during shareholders' meetings of listed companies represents an opportunity to take a position on the set of values defined in this Charter, in particular:

- _ good governance (balance of powers and effectiveness of deliberative and executive bodies, effectiveness of audit and control systems, method for determining remuneration of company executive officers, promotion of CSR principles, in particular combating climate change, etc.);
- _ equitable sharing of added value through promoting the concept of responsible dividends;
- _ transparency and responsibility with regard to tax and lobbying;
- _ transparency as regards the activity and financial situation (existence, quality and certification of annual reports, etc.);
- _ certain environmental issues (in particular managing climate change-related risks and contributing to the energy transition) and social issues, when the applicable regulatory provisions make it relatively easy to include resolutions on these subjects on the agenda.

ERAFP'S VOTING POLICY IS ORGANISED AROUND SIX SUBJECTS:

Approval of financial statements and management

Transparency as regards the company's activity and its financial and extra-financial situation, effectiveness of the audit and control systems

Board of Directors or Supervisory Board

Good governance - Balance of powers and effectiveness of deliberative and executive bodies

Profit distribution, management of shareholders' equity and equity transactions

Respecting long-term shareholders, giving priority to investments and distributing profits fairly

Executive remuneration

Fairness, moderation and transparency of remuneration

Shareholder rights

Fair treatment of shareholders - Respect for the "one share, one vote" principle

External resolutions, particularly of an environmental or social nature

Transparency as regards and anticipation and restriction of the environmental and social impact of the company's activity

VOTING PRINCIPLES

I. Approval of financial statements and management

Transparency as regards the company's activity and its financial and extra-financial situation, effectiveness of the audit and control systems

I.1 APPROVAL OF FINANCIAL STATEMENTS AND DISCHARGE OF DUTIES

Company information must be available within time periods that enable all shareholders to analyse these matters in advance. In particular, companies must comply with the deadlines introduced by the transposition of the European Directive on shareholder rights as regards online posting of financial statements and statutory auditors' reports, namely at least 21 days prior to the shareholders' general meeting. The information must be truthful and coherent, and the strategy presented must be transparent and stable. Controversial changes in accounting methods will be viewed negatively. Comments by statutory auditors deemed significant may also result in a vote against the resolution.

The absence in the annual financial statements of individual financial reporting for each country in which a company is present may lead to a vote against the resolution. In this area, ERAFP focuses on financial sector companies⁹ for which financial transparency has a particular significance¹⁰. ERAFP defines financial reporting as all information required by the French monetary and financial code (Code monétaire et financier)¹¹, namely, for each state or territory¹²:

- 1° Name of sites and type of business;
- 2° Net banking income or net turnover;
- 3° Full time equivalent headcount;
- 4° Pre-tax profit/loss;
- 5° Amount of income tax due attributable to company sites;
- 6° Public subsidies received.

More generally, ERAFP encourages the publication of country-by-country reporting for all sectors.

The failure to report substantial payments made by companies in the extractive and forestry sector to the governments of countries in which they operate in a separate annual report, broken down per country and per project, may lead to a negative vote. The types of payments disclosed in these reports must be comparable to those published by companies that adhere to the Extractive Industries Transparency Initiative (EITI) and comply with the European Directive on the transparency of the extractive industries¹³.

The absence of sufficiently detailed and credible extra-financial reporting to realistically estimate the company's environmental and social impacts as well as the policies it has developed and the measures it has taken to control these impacts may also lead to a negative vote.

ERAFP does not favour the inclusion of a request for discharge of duties on the meeting agendas. The discharge of duties could impede the initiation of a liability suit against the company officers and directors by investors who have previously voted in favour of it. Third-party asset management companies might view this request for discharge of duties as harmful to their fiduciary responsibility, since it is difficult to grant this favour to company officers and directors while still looking to protect the interests of their own shareholders or the companies giving them the investment mandate. A concession may nevertheless be granted if the request for discharge of duties is associated with the approval of the financial statements, in order to avoid their rejection, or in certain countries where it has no legal value.

1.2 APPROVAL OF RELATED-PARTY AGREEMENTS

Related-party agreements are a key topic, since they involve shareholders being asked to approve agreements signed with related parties. It should be noted that directly or indirectly interested parties should abstain from voting.

The agreements must all be signed in the interests of all shareholders, which implies that they must be clearly laid out and strategically justified and that their conditions must be equitable as regards the interests of all shareholders.

In their special report on regulated agreements, the statutory auditors must provide all information enabling shareholders to vote, so as to satisfy article R.225-31 of the French commercial code (Code de commerce)¹⁴.

Note lastly that article L.225-40 of the French commercial code stipulates in particular that:

- _ The chairman of the board of directors must obtain the statutory auditors' opinion on all authorised agreements and submit these agreements for the general meeting's approval.
- _ The statutory auditors must present a special report on these agreements to the general meeting, which must then put this report to the vote.

ERAFP therefore considers that the general meeting should be able to vote on all regulated agreements, including ongoing ones that have already been approved, through the vote on the statutory auditors' special report. With this in mind, ERAFP will use its vote to show its disapproval of the continued implementation of regulated agreements that have already been approved but do not comply with its voting policy principles.

1.3 STATUTORY AUDITORS

The statutory auditors play a critical role in the effectiveness of the control systems and confidence in the group's financial statements. ERAFP's voting policy aims to help monitor the independence of the statutory auditors. In this regard, certain rules aimed at encouraging the rotation of the statutory auditors and restricting fees unrelated to accounts certification duties can help limit potential conflicts of interest.

The French system is characterised by the operation in tandem of two principal statutory auditors and the appointment of two alternate statutory auditors that play a less significant role¹⁵. As a result, statutory auditors, who must be able to carry out their assignment in a fully independent manner, may be subject to less strict rotation rules than in foreign systems with single statutory auditors.

As such, in France, the principal statutory auditors or their representative, who are/is elected for a six-year term, should not be elected more than three times in a row at the same company (i.e. the maximum tenure should be 18 years) nor certify the financial statements of affiliated listed companies or the controlling shareholder.

ERAFP also promotes the independence of statutory auditors by requesting that any fees other than those received as part of the legally required certification of the financial statements be clearly disclosed and not substantial.

As regards the alternate statutory auditors, they should be able to take over the auditing responsibilities from the principal statutory auditors if there is a sudden vacancy in the auditing assignment, for example in the event of a resignation following a conflict, and therefore the alternate statutory auditors should not belong to the same firm as the principal statutory auditors.

¹⁴ Article R225-31 Version in effect at 25 January 2012, since 27 March 2007

The statutory auditors' report covered under paragraph 3 of article L. 225-40 contains:

1. The listing of agreements and commitments submitted to the shareholders' meeting for approval;
2. The names of interested directors;
3. The name(s) of the interested chief executive officer or deputy chief executive officer(s);
4. The designation of the interested shareholder or shareholders holding a voting block of more than 10% and, if it involves a shareholding company, the controlling company as defined by article L. 233-3;
5. The nature and purpose of these agreements and commitments;
6. The essential provisions of these agreements and commitments, notably the indication of prices or rates applied, rebates and commissions agreed to, payment deadlines granted, stipulated interests, collateral extended, the nature, amount and methods for granting each of the benefits or indemnities mentioned in articles L. 225-22-1 and L. 225-42-1 and, where applicable, all other indications enabling shareholders to assess the interest at stake in the conclusion of the agreements and commitments being reviewed;
7. The list of agreements and commitments entered into and authorised during previous financial years which remained in effect during the last financial year and which were reviewed by the Board of Directors in accordance with article L. 225-40-1, as well as, where applicable, any information enabling shareholders to assess the interest for the company of maintaining the listed agreements and commitments, the importance of the goods delivered or services provided as well as the amount of payments made or received during the year, pursuant to these agreements and commitments.

¹⁵ Since Act 2016-1691 of 9 December 2016, the appointment of one or more alternate statutory auditors is now a legal requirement only if the holder of the office is an individual or a one-person company. Alternate statutory auditors may however still be appointed voluntarily, in the same way as principal statutory auditors.

II. Board of Directors or Supervisory Board

Good governance: Balance of powers and effectiveness of deliberative and executive bodies

II.1 ELECTION OF BOARD MEMBERS

The Board's composition should reflect a balance of expertise, experience and independence in the interests of the company and its shareholders. The primary quality of a Board lies in its composition: honest directors, who have a clear understanding of how the company works, pay close attention to the interests of all shareholders and stakeholders and are sufficiently involved in the definition of the strategy and deliberations to participate effectively in all the Board's collegial decisions.

The shareholders' general meeting must be able to vote on each candidate separately, and ERAFP does not favour the practice of block voting. Nevertheless, in countries such as Italy where election by list is common practice, cases are assessed individually and ERAFP may sometimes vote in favour of a list if the proposed candidates do not pose a major problem.

In publicly traded companies, it is important to ensure that the company will be governed in the interests of all shareholders and, more generally, its legitimate stakeholders, and not just in the interests of one or more specific shareholder(s). ERAFP therefore believes that it is important for a significant proportion of the Board of Directors to be made up of directors who are considered independent or "free from potential conflicts of interest". For large companies, independent directors should make up half of the Board. For controlled companies that cannot achieve this objective, the Board should strive to have at least one-third independent directors.

In that regard it is important to note that the description of a director as free of conflicts of interests is not a value judgment. This description does not mean that the person will necessarily act in the interests of shareholders to a greater extent, but merely states the objective situation of a director who is not considered to have potential conflicts of interest. Specifically, it does not apply to:

- _ managers and former managers (including managers of acquired entities or subsidiaries);
- _ employees and former employees within the past five years;
- _ shareholder(s) owning at least 3% of the voting rights and its/their representatives (which includes any person who has ties to this/these shareholder(s));
- _ parents and relatives of the managers;
- _ current representatives or former representatives within the past three years of clients, suppliers, service providers (lawyers, consultants, auditors, etc.), creditors, partners or any other contracting partner with the Group;
- _ persons receiving significant and special remuneration for services provided to companies of a Group, its controlling shareholder or its managers;
- _ persons belonging to a Group administered by one of the company's managers (direct or indirect cross directorship);
- _ persons who within the past three years have been involved in a major strategic transaction (asset transfer, merger, etc.);
- _ commercial and investment bankers, heads of large financial institutions and former bank managers who have held these positions within the past three years if the institution in which they work/worked has or has recently had a business relationship with the company concerned;
- _ persons who hold political office (conflict of interest between public and private interests);
- _ directors whose term of office or presence at the company or Group is equal to or greater than 12 years;
- _ directors appointed through means other than a formal election by the shareholders' meeting (positions provided for in articles of association or by law);
- _ persons with ties to a competing company.

Diversity of boards of directors

ERAFP encourages boards to recruit nominees from as wide a spectrum as possible in order to ensure a high degree of diversity, notably as regards female representation. That could constitute a favourable factor in support of an appointment. ERAFP encourages companies to undertake measures that will allow them in the medium term to have a board consisting of a significant proportion of women. In France, the 2011 Copé-Zimmerman law requires boards of directors of listed companies to comply with gender quotas, with the objective of 40% of female members by 2017¹⁶. In Europe, except in cases where national laws set higher targets, companies are encouraged to comply at least with the objective set by the former European Justice Commissioner Viviane Reding: 40% of female members by 2020¹⁷. With this in mind, ERAFP considers that by the end of the 2022 general meetings season all European and US companies should have a board made up of at least 40% women, and will therefore vote against any appointment that prevents this target from being achieved. Lastly, ERAFP will support the relevant proposals in any country where there is an initiative involving investors aimed at increasing the proportion of women on boards¹⁸.

To take better account of the specific features of each company, ERAFP may recommend supporting the proposed appointment of candidates who would strengthen the board of directors in a particularly problematic area, even if the other criteria are not complied with. For example, ERAFP may support a female candidate presenting conflicts of interest (or holding an excessive number of board appointments, etc.) if the proportion of women on the board of directors is particularly low and even if fewer than half of the board members present no conflicts of interest. Conversely, a male candidate presenting no conflicts of interest may also be supported if the proportion of women on the board of directors is only marginally below 35% and if the board of directors as a whole presents significant conflicts of interest.

Salaried directors

In order for a wider range of companies' legitimate stakeholders to be represented on boards, ERAFP also intends to encourage boards to allocate seats to employee representative directors.

Insofar as they are inclined to defend the interests of a specific stakeholder (the company's employees), employee representatives cannot be considered to be completely free of conflicts of interest. Nonetheless, because they have no ties to the company's management or shareholders, they are in a position to put forward critical arguments with respect to the latter. For this reason ERAFP believes that employee representatives should not be taken into account when determining the board's independent director ratio.

Moreover, the law on security of employment of 14 June 2013¹⁹, reinforced by the law on labour-management dialogue and employment of 17 August 2015²⁰ and article 184 of the PACTE Act of 22 May 2019²¹, provides for employee representation on the board of directors of French companies with at least 1,000 employees if their registered offices, including those of their subsidiaries, are in France, and with at least 5,000 employees if their registered offices, including those of their subsidiaries, are in France and overseas. There must be at least two directors representing employees in companies with more than eight directors and at least one in companies with eight or fewer directors. If a board has two directors representing employees, it must comply with the gender parity principle.

Over the past few years, ERAFP has noted that certain French companies are deemed to fall outside the scope of application of the law given the "holding company" status of the parent company. If it is clear that the company is acting against the spirit of the law in question, ERAFP will recommend voting against the renewal of the appointment of members of the appointments committee.

Employee-shareholder directors

In order for a wider range of companies' legitimate stakeholders to be represented on boards, ERAFP also intends to encourage boards to allocate seats to directors representing the employee-shareholders. Insofar as they are inclined to defend the interests of a specific stakeholder (the employee-shareholders), employee-shareholder representatives cannot be considered to be completely free of conflicts of interest. Nonetheless, because they have no ties to the company's management or shareholders, they are in a position to put forward critical arguments with respect to the latter. For this reason ERAFP believes that employee-shareholder representatives should not be taken into account when determining the board's independent director ratio.

Combination of the functions of Chairman and Chief Executive Officer

The Board of Directors must be able to exercise objective judgement on the company's affairs. The combination of the Chairman of the Board and Chief Executive Officer functions creates a potential conflict of interest on all matters taken up by the board of directors (strategy, evaluation of the top company officer, remuneration, audit, succession process planning). It is highly preferable that the Chief Executive Officer be accountable to an independent Chairman of the Board who is in a better position to organise the work of the Board of Directors and to oversee and evaluate management, if applicable. ERAFP therefore recommends a separation of roles Chairman of the Board and Chief Executive Officer. However, in certain specific cases, the combination of roles may be accepted, exceptionally and temporarily. The checks and balances in place in such cases should be sufficient to counterbalance the power of the Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, and the combination of roles should be justifiable given the company's context.

Moreover, unless the company's context continues to justify otherwise, ERAFP would prefer the company to return to a situation of separation of functions.

Preferably, the position of Chairman of the Board should not be held by the former Chief Executive Officer or Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, although a transitional board term may be accepted in order to promote the separation of functions. When selecting a new Chief Executive Officer or Chairman of the Board, the Board must reassess the appropriateness of combining functions for the company and encourage the separation of functions.

Lastly, the proposed appointment of a lead independent director or non-independent chairman is not enough to ensure a valid alternative to the separation of functions. Nevertheless, should a company decide to create the position of lead independent director, as a minimum the person concerned should be free of any conflicts of interest.

Number of board positions

The unavailability of any candidate who holds too many board positions at listed companies or large organisations in France or abroad, or, if the candidate is an executive officer of a listed company, other non-executive board positions outside his main group, constitutes grounds for opposition regardless of the board's composition. ERAFP also discourages any practice of cross directorship, be it direct or indirect (e.g. through persons with family ties).

Finally, directors need to have a high attendance at board meetings. Otherwise, unless special justification is provided by the company, absences may negatively affect the renewal of a director's term of office.

Specialist committees

The existence of specialist committees with a majority of independent members contributes to the effective operation of the board, as this facilitates a more detailed and objective preparation of board decisions. The ERAFP recommends that three separate committees are setup: an audit committee, an appointments committee and a compensation/remuneration committee.

To ensure the independence of these committees, the ERAFP :

- _ recommends that at least two thirds of the members of the audit committee are directors who are free from any conflicts of interest and that this is raised to the majority of members for the appointments and compensation committees;
- _ considers that executive corporate officers should not sit on these committees;
- _ recommends that each committee is chaired by a director who is free from conflicts of interest.

When appointing directors or renewing their terms of office, a failure to comply with the above conditions may lead to ERAFP voting against the resolution.

Moreover, ERAFP encourages the creation of a specific CSR committee to enable environmental and social issues to be taken into account at the company's highest decision-making level.

Board of Directors' responsibility regarding climate issues

The Board of Directors is responsible for supervising the definition of the company's climate-related risks and opportunities and overseeing the strategy implemented by management to manage these risks and opportunities.

If, in light of the company's business sector, climate issues are not deemed to have been adequately taken into account, this could have an adverse impact when it comes to voting on the reappointment of the Chairman of the Board.

II.2 REMUNERATION OF BOARD MEMBERS

The payment of attendance fees should, to a material extent ($\geq 30\%$ of the total amount) be subject to actual attendance at board and committee meetings.

The level of board attendance fees must be in line with those observed in the country for companies with similar market capitalisations.

Remuneration in the form of shares or share purchase warrants is generally not desirable for non-executive directors, although it may be acceptable in small- and medium-sized companies with limited resources that are seeking to attract well-qualified and independent directors, provided that such remuneration does not have a significantly higher value than the average attendance fees observed.

II.3 REMUNERATION OF THE NON-EXECUTIVE CHAIRMAN

The non-executive chairmanship of a board of directors or supervisory board involves little direct operational responsibility. It should not therefore attract remuneration disproportionately higher than the other directors' individual attendance fees.

In France, if the non-executive chairman's remuneration does not correspond to the board's attendance fees it should be governed by regulated agreements. Indeed, any significant remuneration of a chairman must be justified by specific assignments approved at a general meeting by a vote in favour of either attendance fees or a regulated agreement.

The level of remuneration of the board's chairman should not exceed that in companies of comparable size.

III. Profit distribution, management of shareholders' equity and equity transactions

Respecting long-term shareholders, giving priority to investments and distributing profits fairly.

III.1 PROFIT DISTRIBUTION

The profit distribution policy offered to shareholders must be justified, in line with the company's strategy and outlook, notably as regards its cash flow from operations, and consistent with the profit distribution policies of the relevant business sector. ERAFP is also careful to weigh this policy against changes in the company's overall payroll expenditure in order to ensure a fair balance between employees and shareholders over the long term.

ERAFP believes that the possibility of choosing a dividend payable in shares can help to strengthen shareholders' equity and promote investment over profit distribution.

In 2022, ERAFP will pay particular attention to the economic and social impacts of the health crisis on the company and to any state aid that the company has received, and will factor them into its analysis of the proposed dividend policy.

III.2 SHARE REPURCHASES AND CAPITAL REDUCTIONS

ERAFP encourages companies to invest in long-term projects and seeks to ensure that companies in need of cash do not table resolutions to authorise large-scale own share repurchases or capital reductions through the cancellation of treasury shares.

Share repurchase transactions during public offerings must be subject to the shareholders' approval, for example during an extraordinary general meeting.

However, a resolution may authorise share repurchases during a public offering if they are exclusively intended to enable execution of a share purchase plan aimed at delivering shares pursuant to an existing authorisation (to satisfy grants of options to purchase shares, conversion of OCEANEs²², etc.) or if they make it possible to fund the acquisition of an asset through a share exchange during a strategic transaction announced to the market prior to the initiation of the public offering.

²²_ OCEANE: Bond convertible or exchangeable into new and/or existing shares

III.3 DEBT

Financial debt is both an essential financing capacity for the company and an extreme risk in the case of excessive debt. Unfortunately Order n° 2004-604 of 24 June 2004 relating to the reform of the regime for transferable securities issued by commercial companies withdrew control of bond issues from the annual general meeting. Debt levels can therefore be controlled when requests are made to use cash to pay dividends or buy back shares.

In addition, to limit risks and contribute to the sustainable development of the companies, ERAFP encourages companies to submit a maximum level of indebtedness that must not be exceeded for approval by the shareholders at the general meeting.

III.4 CONTRIBUTIONS AND MERGERS

Any new strategic transactions involving the Group's activities or significantly modifying the parent company's shareholders' equity is reviewed to ensure the balance of four criteria:

_ long-term strategic interest of the transaction;

_ financial terms;

_ potential impact of the transaction on governance, shareholder rights and stakeholders;

_ social and environmental impact of the transaction.

III.5 PRIOR AUTHORISATION AND PREFERENTIAL SUBSCRIPTION RIGHTS

Respect for preferential subscription rights of shareholders is fundamental during capital increases, since it makes it possible to indemnify any shareholder who does not have the means or possibility of subscribing a capital increase that is well received by the market.

Requests to dilute the delegation of authority in order to cancel the preferential subscription rights of shareholders must be strictly limited, both in terms of the discount as well as the percentage of capital requested.

Capital increases during public offerings must be submitted for the shareholders' approval, for example in the context of an extraordinary general meeting. If, in principle, the company authorises a capital increase during a public offering (it has not included in its articles of association the principle of neutrality during a public offering or has not included in the resolution the suspension of the authorisation to increase the capital during a public offering), ERAFP will vote against it unless it is shown that this increase can be used to protect the interests of the company and its employees.

IV. Executive remuneration

Fairness, moderation and transparency of remuneration

IV.1 EXECUTIVE REMUNERATION

a. Total remuneration

ERAFP seeks to contribute to the definition of rules in the area of remuneration for the company's executive officers that promotes their alignment with its objectives and interests as a long-term, socially responsible investor as well as with the issue of social cohesion.

Consequently, ERAFP supports regulatory or market initiatives that seek to encourage shareholder voting on executive remuneration. ERAFP is pleased to see that voting on the remuneration of company officers is becoming general practice in OECD countries. ERAFP had welcomed the introduction in June 2013 of a consultative vote on remuneration of executive corporate officers as part of the Afep/Medef corporate governance code. However, ERAFP laments the code's exclusively consultative scope. Indeed, it appears legitimate that a company's shareholders should, through these mechanisms, be able to help safeguard against any abuse or excess in terms of pay.

ERAFP welcomes the introduction by the Sapin 2 law, and the revised version of the Afep/Medef code, of a binding vote on the company's proposals, which is more respectful of the principle of sovereignty of the shareholders' meeting. ERAFP expects all companies that issue securities to the public to submit executive remuneration to a shareholders' vote.

Each year, prior to the shareholders' general meeting, remuneration for the company's executive officers must be presented in a detailed report that is itemised for each company officer and includes all fixed, variable, cash and in-kind payments, any share-based item granted as well as the carrying value for the year of any post-employment benefit in the form of supplementary retirement schemes. The same applies to the remuneration policy: it must be published in detail before the shareholders' general meeting, detailing its principles, mechanisms and the policy on the various components of executive pay, and must not be limited to providing information on the foregoing financial year.

Executive remuneration and any changes thereto, be they increases or decreases, must be in line with the company's strategy and tied mainly to its performance and changes in the long-term value of the company's shares. For ERAFP, the evaluation of the company's performance must not be based solely on economic and financial criteria but must also reflect the social and environmental aspects of its activity. With this in mind, ERAFP seeks to promote the recognition of indicators related to the company's management of environmental, social and governance issues in the remuneration of the company's executive officers.

For companies in high climate impact sectors²³, ERAFP expects specific climate-related criteria to be taken into account when determining the variable remuneration of top executive officers.

The remuneration of the top company officers must be exemplary in order to ensure strong social cohesion within the company. Consequently, when annual pay rises are limited for employees or the company has to implement a major redundancy programme, remuneration of company officers must reflect this (no increase in fixed remuneration, no annual bonus, no stock options or bonus share grants, limits on the variable portion).

The socially acceptable maximum amount of total remuneration (salary, benefits, options, bonus shares and top-up pension plan contributions) corresponds to 100 times the minimum salary in force in the country in which the company's registered office is located, which in France corresponds to the national minimum wage (SMIC). If there is no legally defined minimum salary in the country in which the company's registered office is located, other benchmarks may be used, such as the lowest salary paid by the company in the country in which its registered office is located. This type of ceiling should make it possible to keep differences in remuneration between managers and employees at levels that do not negatively affect the company's business or the motivation of its teams. Each Board of Directors can therefore also define a maximum gap between the remuneration of the top company officer and the company's minimum, average or median salary that would not exceed this ceiling. For example, in a large listed company ERAFP would consider a ratio of median salary to top executive salary higher than 1 to 50 to be excessive.

Following this logic, ERAFP encourages the publication of an equity ratio, already implemented in certain countries, including France by means of the PACTE Act²⁴, allowing control of the gap between the highest remuneration and the median or average remuneration of company employees, with the aim of making companies more accountable for their pay practices.

As a disincentive to risk taking or excessive remuneration, the aggregate variable remuneration (maximum bonus, value of allocatable shares) should not exceed three times the basic salary (fixed remuneration).

In its analysis of executive remuneration programmes, ERAFP will also assess changes in remuneration practices and amounts over time, and the board of directors' response, particularly that of the remuneration committee, to any significant contestation by the shareholders.

In 2022, the effects of the health crisis on the economy, employees, clients and communities, as well as state aid, will have to be taken into account by boards of directors and included in their remuneration decisions, which must be clearly disclosed to shareholders.

b. Annual variable remuneration

The annual variable component of executives' salaries should be based chiefly on additional rather than alternative, and verifiable, criteria. It is essential that the calculation methods used are transparent and consistent. ERAFP encourages companies to use detailed and verifiable extra-financial criteria such as job creation, workplace accident rate, training and carbon emissions. It is acceptable for assessment of the executive's performance to be partly based on unquantifiable qualitative criteria, such as restructurings, management, deleveraging, disposals, quality and image.

To be able to assess an executive's annual variable remuneration, the shareholders must have access to the following information: performance criteria, target bonus, minimum bonus and maximum bonus.

This variable remuneration should actually vary and the criteria on which it is based be stringent. Accordingly:

- _ the bonus setting rule should lead to a total lack of bonuses in disappointing or difficult years;
- _ the criteria comparing the group's performance with that of its competitors should be assessed constructively.

The annual variable remuneration and changes therein must be in line with the company's performance over the financial year. Only an exceptional performance should lead to the award of higher remuneration than the target variable remuneration. This annual variable remuneration must be strictly limited to 100% of the fixed remuneration in the event targets are met (target annual variable). If, exceptionally, the performance targets are exceeded, the annual variable remuneration may exceed this limit but may under no circumstances be more than 150% of the fixed basic salary.

The annual bonus should only account for a marginal share of the total variable remuneration in order to foster the genuine alignment of remuneration with long-term performance.

Companies should preferably make all annual bonus payments subject to a clawback clause, notably to allow for the possibility of bonus adjustments following accounting adjustments or the repayment of bonuses due to accounting malpractice or anti-competitive practices giving rise to ex post fines or penalties, etc.

²⁴ To date, the United States and the United Kingdom have legislated for introduction of an equity ratio. France's Pacte Act introduces an obligation to disclose ratios for the remuneration of each of a company's executives in relation to the median and average remuneration of its full-time employees (excluding executives' remuneration) and requires changes in these ratios over the last five financial years to be reported in the corporate governance report. These requirements are laid down in article L.22-10-9 of the French commercial code (Code de commerce) has been amended to reflect these requirements.

c. Long-term variable remuneration

ERAFP will seek to ensure that large listed companies no longer authorise stock option grants. Experience shows that this mechanism does not promote the alignment sought by ERAFP between the remuneration of company officers and its interests as a long-term and socially responsible investor.

So as not to damage social cohesion within the company, ERAFP considers that bonus share distributions should not be confined to company officers but should be extended to all employees. ERAFP recommends that resolutions authorising the allocation to employees of bonus or performance-related shares be separate from executive committee allocation resolutions in order to establish a clear distinction between executive pay and the question of broadly granting company share rights to managers or employees. ERAFP will seek to ensure that companies authorising bonus share grants to company officers notify shareholders as to the maximum amount that can be granted to each company officer as well as the performance conditions that will be applied. Grants of performance shares to company officers must include performance conditions that are transparent, demanding and measured over the long term (at least three years).

Multiple criteria may be chosen, and they must be sufficiently stringent. They may relate to value creation for the shareholder (share price, total shareholder return - TSR) and to the medium and long-term objectives of the strategic plan, and must include one or more criteria relating to social responsibility as well as climate for high impact sectors.

In principle, when multiple criteria are used clawback criteria should be avoided.

Performance conditions (criteria and target thresholds) must be totally transparent. The shareholders must be informed of the performance conditions relating to plans in the process of vesting. They must also be informed of the same information as well as the achievement rate for each criterion for plans vested in recent years.

d. Supplementary retirement schemes

The principle of company-funded "supplementary" retirement schemes, notably defined benefit plans, is not approved. Given their remuneration levels, company officers should be encouraged to save for retirement using their own means and not have this cost imposed on the company and its shareholders.

e. Severance benefits and non-compete clause

No severance benefits or any other form of benefit similar to a "golden parachute" should be granted. A severance benefit may be justified if the departure is forced, for example as part of a merger successfully implemented by the company officer, if the total benefit does not exceed a year's salary, except in the case of significant length of service (without exceeding a total of two years of salary for 24 years of length of service) and if the company officer receiving the benefit does not already receive total remuneration exceeding the ceiling of 100 times the minimum salary in the country concerned (in France, the minimum wage - SMIC) or in the company.

Moreover, a severance benefit should not be paid to a company officer who decides to retire, as said officer has not incurred any loss.

Where a company applies with due reason a non-compete clause, the amount awarded in respect of said clause combined with severance benefits should not exceed two years' remuneration. If a company officer retires he or she should not be entitled to non-compete compensation, and under no circumstances should such compensation be paid over the age of 65.

f. Signing bonuses

In ERAFP's view, there is no justification for signing bonuses. They may, however, be accepted if intended to compensate the new recruit for any loss of income resulting from the relinquishment of his or her previous functions, providing they remain at a reasonable level.

V. Shareholder rights

Fair treatment of shareholders: respect for the “one share, one vote” principle

V.1 VOTING RIGHTS

The principle of voting rights proportionality is inseparable from that of shareholder equality as regards risk, information and potential gains on liquidation. Double voting rights often benefit influential shareholders looking to obtain or enhance their controlling interest at a lower cost and at the expense of minority shareholders. In order to respect the principle of equitable treatment of shareholders to the fullest extent, ERAFP recommends limiting the use of double voting rights as much as possible. As mentioned above, ERAFP believes that other mechanisms make it possible to promote long-term share ownership, notably the use of loyalty dividends or loyalty shares for shareholders who hold their shares over several years.

V.2 UNRESTRICTED ACCESS TO CAPITAL

As a rule, ERAFP does not favour anti-takeover mechanisms or any instrument that protects only company officers and therefore threatens the interests of shareholders and their freedom to choose. In the event of a hostile takeover bid, the convening of a shareholders’ meeting should enable shareholders to vote on any protective measures on a case-by-case basis.

The issuance of preferred shares or non-voting shares is also not desirable, since multiple share classes do not contribute to the share transparency and liquidity expected by the public. In addition, the diligent exercise of voting rights is the only way to ensure the creation of direct or indirect counterweights and the implementation of standards for best governance and protection for savers.

V.3 RELOCATION OF REGISTERED OFFICE

Any request to relocate the registered office should give rise to a comparative analysis of the rights of shareholders or governance practices and take into account the issue of “legal and tax havens”.

ERAFP will also pay close attention to changes of status by portfolio companies, and in particular to any proposed change of status to that of a European company. European company status may better reflect the European or international nature of the company’s activities and brands. However, any proposed change should be analysed as to whether it foreshadows a transfer of the registered office with a view to aggressive tax optimisation.

VI. External resolutions, in particular of an environmental or social nature

Transparency as regards and anticipation and restriction of the environmental and social impact of the company’s activity

As a long-term investor, ERAFP believes that having clear information on a company’s environmental and social impacts and the policies it implements to limit them makes it easier to assess the risks and opportunities associated with its investment. Consequently, it will support any resolution presented by a shareholder or group of shareholders that seeks to further the consideration of social and environmental impacts, provided that it is sufficiently detailed, justified and in line with the principles described in its SRI Charter and this document, in particular:

- _ control of risks linked to climate change and contribution to the energy transition;
- _ control of environmental impacts;
- _ responsible lobbying practices;
- _ non-discrimination and the promotion of equal opportunities.

VII. Climate-related resolutions

A case-by-case analysis must be conducted, in line with the climate roadmap and ERAFP’s SRI Charter.

A vote against the resolution will be recommended if any of the following conditions apply:

- a) The nominee is subject to a potential conflict of interest as defined in the voting principles ("nominee not free of conflicts of interest") when less than half of the board members are not considered free of conflicts of interest (or one-third of the members in the case of controlled companies).
- b) The proposed board term period exceeds four years.
- c) The resolution applies to several nominees (block election), whereas the election list method is not provided for by law²⁹.
- d) The nominee simultaneously holds more than three board positions in listed companies, large corporations or organisations.
- e) The nominee is a company officer in another company and also simultaneously holds more than one board position outside of his group (in another listed company or large corporation or organisation).
- f) The nominee is a man and, in the event of his appointment, the proportion of women on the board at the end of the 2022 meeting would be less than 40% or significantly lower than in the previous year.
- g) A nominee to the position of lead independent director is not free from conflicts of interest.

II.2 RENEWAL OF TERM FOR A DIRECTOR OR SUPERVISORY BOARD MEMBER

A vote against the resolution will be recommended if any of the following conditions apply:

- a) One of the criteria defined in section II.1 above is not followed.
- b) The nominee is absent without a satisfactory explanation at 25% or more of the board meetings.

²⁹ For Italian companies in particular, in order to increase the number of directors on the board that do not represent the majority shareholder, ERAFP may vote in favour of the/one of the list(s) presented by one or more minority shareholders

II.3 ELECTION OR RE-ELECTION OF A DIRECTOR AND COMPANY OFFICER

A vote against the resolution will be recommended if any of the following conditions apply:

- a) One of the criteria defined in sections II.1 or II.2 above is not met.
- b) The board has more than two people who are simultaneously directors and company officers and the proportion of directors who are free of potential conflicts of interest is less than 50%.

II.4 ELECTION OR RE-ELECTION OF A DIRECTOR AND CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER

A vote against the resolution will be recommended if any of the following conditions apply:

- a) One of the criteria defined in sections II.1 or II.2 above is not met, with the exception of the criterion related to board independence.
- b) The nominee simultaneously holds the positions of Chairman of the Board and Chief Executive Officer. A case-by-case analysis will be carried out. If the combination of functions seems justified in the context of the company and a satisfactory level of checks and balances is in place, a favourable vote may be envisaged, exceptionally and temporarily.

The company's context must therefore be taken into account in the analysis. The following, non-exhaustive factors should be taken into account in particular: any past combination of functions (founding CEO, past combination of functions, etc.), the transitional situation in terms of corporate governance (major change in the composition of the shareholder structure, management or governing bodies in general), the composition of the shareholder structure (several large shareholders or diluted shareholders) and its relationship with the CEO or the company's economic situation.

Special attention must be paid to the existence of a succession plan if the Chairman and Chief Executive Officer is elderly.

The required checks and balances include (but are not limited to):

- _ A Board of Directors composed of a majority of independent directors or, in the case of controlled companies, at least one third.
- _ The existence of a lead independent director, tasked with a special ongoing duty to communicate with shareholders on corporate governance matters and having the power under the articles of association to require the Chairman to convene a Board of Directors' meeting on a specific agenda.
- _ The possibility of holding meetings attended by directors other than members of general management, at least once a year.
- _ The existence of one or more Deputy Chief Executive Officers.
